Fund Manager's Report

The Fund fell by 5.06% during the month of March 2021, underperforming the benchmark by 0.77ppt.

In March, the market continued the downward trend from late February. The industry leading stocks dropped more. For example, CSI 300 fell 5.40% and ChiNext dropped 5.34%. While medium and small-sized stocks fell slightly. CSI 500 dropped only 1.73%. In this sense, it is beneficial for our quantitative strategy to get more excess return through the whole market.

Recently, the stock market has seen fluctuation and the market style has been adjusted. But the domestic economy continues to recover and the stock performance expectations are relatively good. Moreover, since the selling pressure were released after the continuous callback, the market is expected to have a chance to stabilize and rebound.

As for the market environment in April, vaccination has promoted the recovery of overseas economy and the domestic economy has been operating steadily. The division of tasks for the government work report of the two sessions is expected to accelerate the implementation. So we remain neutrally optimistic about the future stock market. We managed to optimize our multi-factor model, will be continuing the momentum of the first quarter to get more alpha, to bring sustained and stable returns.
