Fund Manager's Report

The Fund rose by 5.23% in May 2021, however still underperforming the Benchmark by 1.05ppt. YTD, the fund rose by 11.86%, outperforming the benchmark by 0.44ppt.

In May, the A-share market continued to rise upwards, especially for Growth Enterprise Market and SSE STAR Market. CSI 300 and CSI 500 grew by 4.06% and 3.75% respectively, while ChiNext and SSE STAR 50 rose higher by 7.04% and 9.11% respectively. It shows that high-tech stocks were more attractive during the month.

Under the sharp increase in market expectations and the decline in valuation, the current overall price-performance ratio of A-shares is relatively high. Along with the lower volatility in commodity, it is conducive for funds to go back to stock market.

At the same time, there is no doubt of structural investment opportunities in the market. The core targets of market funds are still focused on consumption and technology. Related sectors are expected to fluctuate upward.
